Fighting Financial Crises
Learning from the Past
Gary B. Gorton and Ellis W. Tallman

“Financial crises are complex economic and political events, and a historical perspective is essential. In this book, two of our best financial historians distill the key lessons for policy makers and practitioners from the US banking crises of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Their accounts of the crises are engaging, and their analyses are insightful and persuasive.” —Ben S. Bernanke, former chairman of the Federal Reserve

International Bankruptcy
The Challenge of Insolvency in a Global Economy
Jodie Adams Kirshner

“With engaging real-life examples of the major corporate and financial collapses, International Bankruptcy puts the issues clearly in context, bringing home to readers just how difficult it may be to resolve issues in this area. An invaluable addition to the literature in the field, the book is filled with clear, accessible, and practical insights.” —Paul J. Omar, De Montfort University

After the Flood
How the Great Recession Changed Economic Thought
Edited by Edward L. Glaeser, Tano Santos, and E. Glen Weyl

“This is a beautifully presented critique—in the classic sense of the word—of some of Friedrich Hayek’s later work on the evolution of liberalism. Throughout, Beck imparts a clarity to Hayek’s theory of cultural evolution that can sometimes remain elusive in Hayek’s own writings. It will prove incredibly useful and illuminating for readers from backgrounds in intellectual history, the history of science, and the history of economic thought.” —Paul H. Erickson, Wesleyan University

Wealth, Commerce, and Philosophy
Foundational Thinkers and Business Ethics
Edited by Eugene Heath and Byron Kaldis

“This is a collection of important writing on business ethics. Unlike a great books approach, it relies on pieces by others explicating key thinkers in the field. . . . The moral issues associated with economic exchange, the ethical dimensions of markets and business, and the creation and uses of wealth are examined through the lenses of sages across a long history. . . . Recommended.” —Choice

Currency Statecraft
Monetary Rivalry and Geopolitical Ambition
Benjamin J. Cohen
“Cohen has virtually unparalleled knowledge of the history and politics of international currencies, and this book is a definitive assessment. It sheds considerable light on the emergence, maturity, and decline of international currencies since World War II.”—Barry Eichengreen, University of California, Berkeley
2019 208 p. 6 x 9 2 tables

Beyond Debt
Islamic Experiments in Global Finance
Daromir Rudnyckyj
“Drawing on extensive fieldwork in Malaysia, Rudnyckyj illuminates how Islamic finance experts design an alternate risk-sharing financial regime that challenges the debt-based norms of global finance. He provides a richly detailed portrait of the critical reasoning, institutions, and practices that mobilize Islam for a new system of wealth generation. This pioneering study should be read by everyone interested in the interlacing of religious piety and international entrepreneurialism, and the neglected role of Muslim societies in redesigning contemporary capitalism.”—Aihwa Ong, author of Fungible Life: Experiment in the Asian City of Life

Economical Writing, Third Edition
Thirty-Five Rules for Clear and Persuasive Prose
Deirdre N. McCloskey
With an Appendix by Stephen T. Ziliak
“This entertaining volume will teach you how to write meaningful and joyful economics. A dose of McCloskey banishes the dismal from the ‘dismal science.’ McCloskey is the Strunk and White of economics, and Economical Writing should be required reading for all economists.”—Claudia Goldin, Harvard University

The Corporate Contract in Changing Times
Is the Law Keeping Up?
Edited by Steven Davidoff Solomon and Randall Stuart Thomas
Solomon and Thomas explore what needs to change in corporate law and what has prevented reform thus far. Among the topics addressed are how the law could be adapted to the reality that activist hedge funds pose a more serious threat to corporations than the hostile takeovers and how statutory laws, such as the rules governing appraisal rights, could be reviewed in the wake of appraisal arbitrage.

Rethinking America’s Highways
A 21st-Century Vision for Better Infrastructure
Robert W. Poole
“Robert Poole’s bold, innovative thinking on infrastructure could not come at a better time. He provides a comprehensive analysis of the endemic, seemingly intractable problems facing our nation’s infrastructure, and offers a practical set of solutions. This book is a must-read for anyone wanting a clear policy guide for moving US infrastructure into the 21st century.”—Rick Geddes, Cornell University

Bulls Markets
Chicago’s Basketball Business and the New Inequality
Sean Dinces
“Bulls Markets is a penetrating and provocative account of the role of Michael Jordan and the championship Bulls in Chicago’s cultural and economic development. Dinces brings together a wealth of interesting research. . . . Dinces’s analysis will have resonance for the citizens and politicians in many cities and should be required reading for public servants contemplating investment in sports infrastructure.”—Andrew Zimbalist, author of Circus Maximus

A Land of Milk and Butter
How Elites Created the Modern Danish Dairy Industry
Markus Lampe and Paul Sharp
“In this highly original book, Lampe and Sharp convincingly argue that the contribution of cooperatives has been exaggerated, and that they mark the end point of a long period of modernization of Danish agriculture, rather than its beginning.”—James Simpson, Universidad Carlos III de Madrid

The Public Good and the Brazilian State
Municipal Finance and Public Services in São Paulo, 1822–1930
Anne G. Hanley
“Hanley’s incredible sleuthing and archival work have produced the most complete study of local governments and finance in Brazil. She shows that the stark socioeconomic and regional inequalities in Brazil emerge not just out of the rise of the export economy but also out of the inability of municipalities to benefit from one of the world’s most dynamic export economies in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.”—Marshall C. Eakin, Vanderbilt University

Deconstructing the Monolith
The Microeconomics of the National Industrial Recovery Act
Jason E. Taylor
“Taylor delivers a fresh perspective on one of the most unusual episodes in American economic history. Taking advantage of a variety of new data sources and recent studies, he drills down to the microeconomic level to tease apart the effects of the NIRA on employment, collusion, and many other outcomes. Anyone interested in work sharing, cartels, or the Great Depression more broadly can benefit from this comprehensive study.” —Chris Vickers, Auburn University

Accounting for Capitalism
The World the Clerk Made
Michael Zakim
“Rigorous and insightful. . . In adding a nuanced explanation of this monumental social transformation of the nineteenth century, Accounting for Capitalism succeeds in illuminating capitalism as a complex architecture—a joint project between industrialists, financiers, clerks and a revolution in social mores—that mobilized tens of millions to pursue an ‘American dream’ over paper trails and a materialistic concept of progress.” —LSE Review of Books

Cigarettes, Inc.
An Intimate History of Corporate Imperialism
Nan Enstad
“With clarity and verve, Enstad grounds the corporate transformation of property, power, and production in the lives of the people who created, advertised, distributed, and consumed one of the twentieth century’s most destructive products. This engrossing and thickly peopled account of the cigarette’s rise in China and the United States is essential reading for all of us who live in the world remade by the corporate form—from the commanding heights of law and trade to the intimate intricacies of social relationship and human bodies.” —Bethany Moreton, Dartmouth College

2018 336 p. 6 x 9 35 halftones

Bankers and Empire
How Wall Street Colonized the Caribbean
Peter James Hudson
“Hudson assembles a staggering array of sources, including company literature, newspaper articles, archived correspondence, ledger and minute books, and court and state department reports. . . .This impressive amount of source material parallels the expansive ground covered by Hudson’s analysis. . . .The greatest strength of Bankers and Empires is that it uses a range of analytical tools developed by cultural, political, social, and business historians.” —Enterprise and Society

2017 368 p. 6 x 9 13 halftones, 1 table

Hawai‘i
Eight Hundred Years of Political and Economic Change
Sumner La Croix
“How do political and economic institutions evolve? How does the past shape the present? Sumner La Croix answers those questions in an illuminating study of Hawai‘i that links the original settlement by humans, endemic warfare among newly formed states, the arrival of Western colonizers, and finally statehood and problems today.” —Philip T. Hoffman, author of Why Did Europe Conquer the World?

CEO Society
The Corporate Takeover of Everyday Life
Peter Bloom and Carl Rhodes
“Essential reading for anyone wanting to understand the contemporary fetishization of corporate leadership. Rhodes and Bloom trace the rise of the cult of the CEO, mounting a strong defense of democracy in the face of this celebratory authoritarianism.”—Chris Land, Anglia Ruskin University

America, Compromised
Lawrence Lessig
“There is not a single American awake to the world who is comfortable with the way things are.”
So begins Lawrence Lessig’s sweeping indictment of contemporary American institutions and the corruption that besets them.
“Lessig lays out a working definition and theory of corruption that is at once simple and comprehensive, a devastating argument that America is racing for the cliff’s edge of structural, possibly irreversible tyranny.”—Cory Doctorow
Berlin Family Lectures
2018 240 p. 5 1/2 x 8 1/2 8 halftones, 1 table

Shut Down the Business School
What’s Wrong with Management Education
Martin Parker
“This is a tour de force of contemporary critical management thinking. All too often, the textbooks and the MBAs get in the way of what should be the future for business—participative, value-creating and sustainable. Read, learn . . . and shut down the business school.”—Ed Mayo, Secretary General, Co-operatives UK

Making Global MBAs
The Culture of Business and the Business of Culture
Andrew Orta
In Making Global MBAs, Andrew Orta provocatively examines the culture of contemporary business education, and the ways MBA programs participate in the production of the worldview of global capitalism through the production of the business subjects who will be managing it. Based upon extensive field research at a set of leading US business schools, this groundbreaking ethnography shows how the culture of MBA training provides a window onto contemporary understandings of capitalism in the context of globalization.

Free Public Transit
And Why We Don’t Pay to Ride Elevators
Edited by Jason Prince and Judith Delheim
“For those seeking to secure more sustainable, equitable, and sane cities, this exceptional collection should be cause for celebration. In ways that are profoundly convincing, Free Public Transit suggests that the ostensibly radical and utopian demand for fare-free transit is hardly radical or utopian at all.”—Kafui Attoh, Joseph S. Finance in America
An Unfinished Story
Kevin R. Brine and Mary Poovey
“[T]he overall effect is to make clear how economics and finance, presented in modern textbooks as a matter of the logical workings of a closed mathematical model, in fact arose not only in bits and pieces but more importantly in concrete practice.”—History of Political Economy

Making Our Neighborhoods, Making Our Selves
George C. Galster
In Making Our Neighborhoods, Making Our Selves, George Galster delves deep into the question of whether American neighborhoods are as efficient and equitable as they could be—socially, financially, and emotionally—and, if not, what we can do to change that. Galster aims to redefine the relationship between places and people, promoting specific policies that reduce inequalities in housing markets and beyond.

Introducing a New Economics
Pluralist, Sustainable and Progressive
Jack Reardon, Maria Alejandra Caporale Madi and Molly Scott Cato
Introducing a New Economics is a groundbreaking textbook that heralds a revolution in the teaching of economics. With a firm commitment to theoretical, methodological, and disciplinary pluralism, the authors challenge the institutional education hegemony head on. This unique textbook reflects a new ethos of economics teaching that highlights sustainability and justice through its discussion of work, employment, power, capital, markets, money, and debt.
