RELIGIOUS STUDIES

Fragments
The Existential Situation of Our Time: Selected Essays, Volume 1
David Tracy
“Consistent with Tracy’s earlier works, these articles display a breadth and depth of theological, philosophical, literary, cultural, and critical scholarship matched by few, if any, contemporary theologians. Each essay is an exercise in interpreting our times, sometimes by interpreting the past, sometimes by interpreting a text, sometimes by interpreting a current situation or flow of events. There are not many authors who share both the breadth of vision and depth of reading and scholarship that Tracy has.” —John McCarthy, Loyola University Chicago

Theological Profiles: Selected Essays, Volume 2
David Tracy
“These volumes will do justice to North America’s preeminent Catholic thinker for the past forty years, as well as contributing significantly to his legacy. Tracy has earned this distinction over a lifetime of conversation and argument on matters philosophical and theological. He is a religious thinker whose thought is woven into the fabric of the disciplines, and which very different thinkers can take up for very different reasons.” —Cyril O’Regan, University of Notre Dame
2019 432 p. 6 x 9 4 halftones

Abiding Grace
Time, Modernity, Death
Mark C. Taylor
“Mark Taylor continues to demonstrate his deep knowledge of major thinkers from the past two centuries. . . . He summarizes his own intellectual journey through reference to these too-little known shapers of our contemporary culture. And he connects those reflections with the crucial themes of abiding grace and the generosity of love.” —George Rupp, Columbia University
“Taylor has written a marvelous work of postmodern philosophy of religion and a/theology that is both a fitting end and apt beginning, or guide, to the interweavings of religion and postmodernism.” —Reading Religion

Seeing Silence
Mark C. Taylor
“Based on the synesthesia between seeing and hearing, Seeing Silence is an original and fascinating meditation on the origins of human experience, art, and language. Taylor argues eloquently for the significance of silence in the contemporary world, and he shows the value of reflecting on the work of artists and thinkers who have recognized this.” —Graham Parkes, University of Vienna

Hunted
Predation and Pentecostalism in Guatemala
Kevin Lewis O’Neill
“In O’Neill’s Hunted the idea of capturing souls by the church in Guatemala takes on different shades of meanings, addressing the physical capture of drug addicts and recidivists and the placement of these individuals in different forms of detention, often against their will. . . . Looking to Guatemala as a starting point, the insights he provides us with are significant for thinking through these issues in different contexts.”—Ato Quayson, author of Oxford Street, Accra
2019 224 p. 6 x 9

Faking Liberties
Religious Freedom in American-Occupied Japan
Jolyon Baraka Thomas
“Meticulously researched, theoretically sharp, and elegantly written, Faking Liberties is an excellent study not only of how religious freedom was constructed as a transnational ideal through mutual negotiation during the period of American occupation, but also of how various actors interacted with religious freedom during the interbellum period.”—H-Net Reviews
“Thomas draws on an impressive array of important sources to argue that although religious freedom solves problems of inequity and oppression, it creates new problems and is inherently coercive.”—Choice

Make Yourselves Gods
Mormons and the Unfinished Business of American Secularism
Peter Coviello
“From a reviled set of bad beliefs and practices, Mormonism became a good white American religion by the end of the nineteenth century by redirecting the carnal life of the spirit to the reproduction of the domestic nuclear family. Make Yourselves Gods is at once a revisionist history of Mormonism and a critical engagement with theories of secularism, told with shining clarity in breathless, gorgeous prose.”—Joan Wallach Scott, author of Sex and Secularism
2019 304 p. 6 x 9

The Aliites
Race and Law in the Religions of Noble Drew Ali
Spencer Dew
“In this remarkable book of personal and communal atonement, Dew honors what he calls ‘the intellectual aikido’ of Aliite thinkers across a hundred years of insistent devotion to the ideals of American citizenship. Placing the Aliites in the proud company of American freethinkers, Dew lays before us an alternative tradition of American democracy. . . . The Aliites introduces us to a fecund and vital vernacular legal imagination, one that could only be American.”—Winnifred Fallers Sullivan, Indiana University Bloomington

Apples and Oranges
Explorations In, On, and With Comparison
Bruce Lincoln
“Combining bracing critique and scrupulously pursued case studies, Apples and Oranges ranges from the history of studies of ‘religion,’ to the Spanish Civil War, to Beowulf, to Herodotus’ Scythians, and the Lakota Ghost Dance, and urges what Lincoln calls ‘weak’ comparison, fortified in his case by dazzling erudition and an unfailing ethical commitment. . . . Inspiring and persuasive, this is the work of a great scholar at the height of his powers.”

Authority
Construction and Corrosion
Bruce Lincoln
In this fascinating and intricate analysis, Bruce Lincoln argues that authority is not an entity but an effect. Employing a vast array of examples, he offers a telling analysis of the performance of authority, and subversions of it, from ancient times to the present. Lincoln does not find a diminution of authority or a fundamental change in the conditions that produce it. Rather, he finds modern authority splintered, expanded, and, in fact, multiplied as the mechanisms for its construction become more complex—and more expensive.

The Myth of Disenchantment
Magic, Modernity, and the Birth of the Human Sciences
Jason A. Josephson-Storm
“Kripal presents us with a compilation of theories, cultural references and anecdotes making up an impassioned thesis about the future of religious studies and ‘what human beings may become’ . . . For all its eccentricities, Kripal’s work is playful, engaging and original.”—Times Higher Education

With the World at Heart
Studies in the Secular Today
Thomas A. Carlson
“This is a work of Continental philosophy at its best. . . . In deep dialogue with some of the most interesting thinkers of the past half century, Carlson offers nothing less than a ‘philosophy of spirit’ for our age, where spirit appears as the world-forming power of love as well as the love-preserving power of world. A major contribution to our understanding of human finitude in its existential openness to time and world.”—Robert Pogue Harrison, author of Juvenescence

Powers of Distinction
On Religion and Modernity
Nancy Levene
“Abraham is modern, Plato is not: this is the seemingly paradoxical position carefully argued for in Levene’s fine book, where she transforms received ideas about religion and modernity. . . . Key to her demonstration is a new understanding of history: not the realization of a promise, but the injunction to leave for the other’s land.”—Etienne Balibar

Discourse and Truth and Parrēsia
Michel Foucault
“Today, when the questions of truth and truth-telling could not be more urgent, this compendium is an indispensable resource, tracing the problems back to the fifth century BCE and recovering the birth of the very notion of the truth-teller. These lectures are unique in offering a concentrated and sharp presentation of Foucault’s history of truth-telling.”—Bernard E. Harcourt, editor of Michel Foucault, The Punitive Society

Wrong-Doing, Truth-Telling
The Function of Avowal in Justice
Michel Foucault
“A stunning set of lectures given by Foucault that focus on the history of ‘avowing’ one’s acts and the truth of who one is. Foucault seeks to understand at what point it became important not only to confess to a crime, but to avow one’s act in public. . . . This is a wonderful and arresting read.”—Judith Butler

Sovereignty and the Sacred
Secularism and the Political Economy of Religion
Robert A. Yelle
“With an incredible depth and range of scholarship, Sovereignty and the Sacred makes a strong case for the continuing importance of the field of the history of religions and the comparative study of religion, and it makes a crucial intervention in theorizing religion. Yelle’s argument is rich, important, and deeply erudite.”—Tyler Roberts, author of Encountering Religion

Three Inquiries in Church and State
Paul Christopher Johnson, Pamela E. Klassen, and Winnifred Fallers Sullivan

Magnús Eiríksson
A Forgotten Contemporary of Kierkegaard
Edited by Gerhard Schreiber and Jon Stewart
This book is the first anthology of writings to be devoted to Icelandic theologian and religious writer Magnús Eiríksson (1806–81). Eiríksson made a name for himself by being an outspoken advocate of tolerance and freedom of thought and conscience in matters of religion. This book aims to resurrect Eiríksson’s thought for a new era and offer insight into his historical and cultural background.

Who Owns Religion?
Scholars and Their Publics in the Late Twentieth Century
Laurie L. Patton

“Who Owns Religion? boldly identifies and deftly navigates the complex ‘eruptive public space’ that arises when scholars of religion and their multiple publics collide. Patton presents a grounded understanding of particular controversies across multiple traditions, and provides a searching analysis of the larger question of whether religion can be theorized at all without concomitant theorization of the university, the non-academic institution, and the public sphere. Patton’s constructive pathways across this entanglement make this deeply reflexive and well-written study powerfully relevant to any discipline that claims a public face.” —Leela Prasad, Duke University

Irrevocable
A Philosophy of Mortality
Alphonso Lingis

“In this rich and unique philosophical narrative, Alphonso Lingis recounts spiritual journeys from Incan Peru to the streets of Paris and África to Cambodia’s Truth and Reconciliation Trials. In conversation with Heidegger, he offers meditations on death, with Foucault on madness, with Nietzsche on extreme joy, and through phenomenology his thoughts on the paradoxes of time. Autobiographical vignettes and the author’s photographs serve as testimony to a profoundly philosophical life.” —Cynthia Willett, Emory University

The Church and the Kingdom
Giorgio Agamben

Presenting an exegesis of certain key passages in the New Testament, Giorgio Agamben examines the philology and philosophy at the root of the Church and of its earthly reign. With its examinations of the foundational texts of the Church, The Church and the Kingdom reveals significant connections and parallel ideologies that are imperative to understanding the current global situation.

“Faithful to its surrounding, as if a similar place almost invokes this, Agamben’s text can be regarded as some sort of sermon. Contrary to most sermons, however, Agamben’s essay does not mainly have the faithful in mind.” —Plurilogue

Forming Humanity
Redeeming the German Bildung Tradition
Jennifer A. Herdt

“With exemplary scholarship, depth, and clarity Herdt provides a compelling and rich analysis of the Bildung tradition and the interactions of theology, philosophy, and literature that shaped it. And through her constructive intellectual history, Herdt interrogates and opens out theological and historical frameworks for thinking through a central conceptual crisis of our own day: how to imagine and cultivate a sense of shared humanity when the very notion of humanity as a universal moral and political community is at once deeply problematic and urgently needed.”—Luke Bretherton, Duke University

The Moral Meaning of Nature
Nietzsche’s Darwinian Religion and Its Critics
Peter J. Woodford

“Woodford raises the question of the impact of naturalistic approaches to life on conceptions of value, science, and religion in the late nineteenth century, taking Friedrich Nietzsche as his point of departure. Woodford does an excellent job of showing how the concept of ‘life’ connects many strands of Nietzsche’s thought while also engaging a constellation of authors and their approaches, such as Overbeck and the study of religion, Simmel and the study of sociology, and Rickert and the neo-Kantian approach to values.”—John H. Gershom Scholem
An Intellectual Biography
Amir Engel

“This careful, convincing intellectual biography of philosopher/historian Gershom Scholem (1897–1982) occasions rethinking the relationship between Scholem’s scholarship on kabbalah and sabbatism and his personal journey as a Zionist. . . . Scholem’s scholarship reflects his own life experience even as it reveals a community’s need to transform in the face of historical trauma. This engaging, important biography teaches one a great deal about 20th-century European and Jewish history. Highly recommended.”—Choice

“As Scholem transcends the boundary between a scholar of Jewish history and a subject of Jewish history scholarship, Engel’s biography merits a place in the debate over the man and his thought.”—H-Net Reviews

Maimonides’ Guide of the Perplexed in Translation
A History from the Thirteenth Century to the Twentieth
Edited by Josef Stern, James T. Robinson, and Yonatan Shemesh
Moses Maimonides’s Guide of the Perplexed is the greatest philosophical text in the history of Jewish thought and a major work of the Middle Ages. For almost all of its history, however, the Guide has been read and commented upon in translation rather than in its original Judeo-Arabic. This volume is the first to tell the story of the translations and translators of Maimonides’ Guide and its impact in translation on philosophy from the Middle Ages to the present day.

A History of German Jewish Bible Translation
Abigail Gillman
 “[This book] is important because the subject of Bible translations is a key to the mentalité of German Jewry since Moses Mendelssohn. With a novel handle on a complex body of literature, Professor Gillman has crafted an original conceptual grid to overcome the atomized character of eleven distinct translations. . . . Gillman’s goal is not to discuss all translations, but rather to highlight the endless effort by German Jews to cultivate their religious identity in a Christian body politic deeply ambivalent about their integration.”—Ismar Schorsch, Jewish Theological Seminary

Freedom and Despair
Notes from the South Hebron Hills
David Shulman
“For fifteen years, David Shulman, a renowned scholar of South Asian languages and religion has been involved with Ta’ayush, whose name is the Arabic word for coexistence. The group has been protesting in the South Hebron Hills, in Area C of the West Bank, where some 300,000 Palestinians, most of them farmers and shepherds, live. . . Freedom and Despair is an account of his experiences there and an attempt to understand the deep antipathy that drives the violence and destruction in the region.”—New York Review of Books

Knot of the Soul
Madness, Psychoanalysis, Islam
Stefania Pandolfo
“Knot of the Soul combines sensitive ethnography, Islamic practices of healing, and suggestive encounters with psychiatry and psychoanalytic theory. Pandolfo has written an unusually insightful work that serves as an excellent example of the riches that these three different traditions . . . can offer our contemporary understanding of madness and reason.”—Talal Asad, City University of New York

Islam and World History
The Ventures of Marshall Hodgson
Edited by Edmund Burke Hodgson and Robert J. Mankin
“In our age of Islamophobia and renewed racist and religious nationalisms, nothing could be more important than Marshall Hodgson’s humanist and universalist vision, exemplified in his Venture of Islam. These essential essays on Hodgson stand as almost unique in exploring the life and thought of a major American thinker on Islam and Muslim civilization, and they will be indispensable to anyone concerned with world history.”—Juan Cole, University of Michigan

Old Thiess, a Livonian Werewolf
A Classic Case in Comparative Perspective
Carlo Ginzburg and Bruce Lincoln

In 1691, a Latvian peasant known as Old Thiess boldly announced before a district court that he was a werewolf. Yet far from being a diabolical monster, he insisted, he was one of the “hounds of God,” fierce guardians who battled sorcerers, witches, and even Satan. Part source text of the trial, part discussion of historians’ thoughts on the case, and part dialogue over their different methodological approaches, Old Thiess, a Livonian Werewolf opens up fresh insight into a remarkable historical occurrence.

Three Christian Martyrdoms from Early Islamic Palestine
Passion of Peter of Capitolias, Passion of the Twenty Martyrs of Mar Saba, Passion of Romanos the Neo-Martyr
Edited and Translated by Stephen J. Shoemaker
A distinctive feature of Christian culture in early Islamic Syria and Palestine was a renewed interest in literature on martyrs, which represented a potential reaction among some Christian communities to the rise of Islam in the region. These writings, composed at the Mar Saba monastery in the Judean Desert, share a common high literary style, although each portrays Christian martyrdom at the hands of the Muslims very differently. This invaluable parallel-text edition offers the only English translations available of these important works.

Staging Contemplation
Participatory Theology in Middle English Prose, Verse, and Drama
Eleanor Johnson

“Eleanor Johnson’s bold wager in Staging Contemplation pays off richly: let’s think of contemplation as bodily, social, staged, and above all participatory. . . . A beautifully coherent, fresh, and persuasive argument.—James Simpson, author of Under the Hammer

“Johnson presents precise, dynamic readings of late-medieval religious English writings (prose, poetry, and drama) that she groups as ‘contemplative’ literature. . . . every page of this book has something cogent and new to show concerning how these works deploy English poetics to widen the horizons of ‘contemplative’ piety in the world.”—Choice

The Ormesby Psalter

“The majestic Ormesby Psalter is a triumph of medieval English manuscript illumination. Frederica Law-Turner clearly and elegantly explains the book’s often enigmatic imagery. The fascinating history of the tome, which took some three quarters of a century to make, reads like one of Ellis Peters’ Chronicles of Brother Cadfael. Protestant Religion and Theology in Wales, Volume 1: From Reformation to Revival, 1588-1760
D. Densil Morgan

The first of a two-volume analysis of theology in Wales, this volume begins with the publication of Bishop William Morgan’s Bible in 1588 and concludes with the first phase of the Evangelical Revival in 1760.

“The patterns of Welsh theology during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries are almost unknown outside Wales. Here, at last, is a thorough study of these developments in both Church and Dissent. It is an authoritative tour de force.”—Professor David Bebbington, University of Stirling

Diagramming Devotion
Berthold of Nuremberg’s Transformation of Hrabanus Maurus’s Poems in Praise of the Cross
Jeffrey F. Hamburger

“Hamburger has accomplished a rare feat among twenty-first-century scholars by bringing unknown illuminated manuscripts to light. Acutely sensitive to subtle changes made in Berthold’s revision, he locates the novelties in their theological context; and, moving from image to word and from diagrams to theological arguments, Hamburger provides a rich compendium of medieval thought and offers a subtle and complicated analysis of the late thirteenth-century version that engages the most important intellectual issues of the day. Like its subject, Diagramming Devotion is at once profoundly learned and inspiringly original.”—Herbert Kessler, author of Experiencing Medieval Art

Philology of the Flesh
John T. Hamilton

“Hamilton insightfully analyzes the importance and meaning of ‘flesh’ in Christian theology and history. But much more than that, Hamilton offers an erudite and wide-ranging series of—potentially discrete—meditations on an impressive range of authors and texts, addressing relations among philology and philosophy, poetry and literature, literature and scripture. Reading the book is more like practicing meditations among muses, all centered on the difficulties of reading and eventually the impossibility of ‘any secure destination.’”—Dale B. Martin, Yale University

Earthly Immortalities
How the Dead Live On in the Lives of Others
Peter Moore

In this thought-provoking book, Peter Moore examines the often overlooked issues concerning human mortality, the fragile ways in which the dead can be said to “live on” in earthly terms: through their children, their work, the memories of others, their possessions, and even their bodies. Such earthly immortalities raise a host of fascinating questions about our attitudes toward life, and toward the world we leave behind us when we die.

The Passion Book
A Tibetan Guide to Love and Sex
Gendun Chopel

“An enchanting new translation . . . Chopel’s writing couldn’t be more timely—or timeless for that matter. He confronted the patriarchy, challenging those who dehumanized women or thought the poor deserved less.”—Los Angeles Review of Books

Brief but sensual . . . a joyful—and explicit—guide to sex . . . [Chopel] views sexual pleasure as a human right and stresses the importance of female consent and equality.”—CNN

Seeking Sakyamuni
South Asia in the Formation of Modern Japanese Buddhism
Richard M. Jaffe

“In this superb book of transnational history, Jaffe uncovers the role that South Asia played in the shaping of modern Japanese Buddhism. Using a wide array of primary sources, he brings to light the forgotten stories of those scholars and seekers who make arduous journeys across the oceans, seeking the traces of the Buddha in the land of his birth. Seeking Sakyamuni is a landmark work of scholarship: rigorously researched, sharply analyzed, and beautifully written. It richly illuminates the religious and intellectual history of Asia.”—Ramachandra Guha, author of India After Gandhi

The Neighborhood of Gods
The Sacred and the Visible at the Margins of Mumbai
William Elison

“The Neighborhood of Gods is an ambitious, deeply erudite, and well-written book that moves across diverse ethnographic sites—from Hindu religious ritual to tribal practice, to Bollywood and urban politics in Mumbai—with an engaging style and innovative research.”—Arvind Rajagopal, New York University

Elison offers a remarkable, persuasive, and—withstanding its theoretical and ethnographic rigor and ambition—accessible argument. . . . [The Neighborhood of Gods] is a resonant portrait of a city that integrates the best of recent writing on religion and secularism, on Bollywood film, on slums and work, and on dreams, spirits, and the uncanny—and rethinks it mightily.”—Lawrence Cohen, University of California, Berkeley

Dream Trippers
Global Daoism and the Predicament of Modern Spirituality
David A. Palmer and Elijah Siegler
“Dream Trippers is compelling, brilliantly and simply written, and will have an important impact not only for those who seek to understand Daoism, but more widely for those who think about how contemporary cultures concretely compete to ‘produce religion’ as an object of interest and study.”
—James Miller, Queen’s University

Once a Peacock, Once an Actress
Twenty-Four Lives of the Bodhisattva from Haribhatta’s Jatakamala
Peter Khoroche
“Reanimates classical stories of the Buddha’s past lives in vivid poetry and prose. While virtues like generosity and the Buddha-to-be’s extraordinary embodiment of them remain the work’s focus, Khoroche observes that Haribhatta’s descriptive powers give this text an almost cinematic quality, coupling ethics with artistry.”—Buddhadharma: The Practitioner’s Quarterly

The Hindu Tantric World
An Overview
André Padoux
“For the past forty years, Padoux has been on the cutting edge of Tantric studies worldwide. The Hindu Tantric World is quite simply the most comprehensive and accessible overview of Hindu Tantra ever written and the culmination of a lifetime of outstanding achievement.”—David Gordon White, University of California, Santa Barbara

Inward
Vipassana Meditation and the Embodiment of the Self
Michal Pagis
“Pagis deftly draws readers into the world of contemporary vipasanna meditation, and in so doing shows us how fruitful—and important—sociological attention to the varied social practices that retool the relations of self and other, private and public, visible and invisible, can be. Inward is a beautifully rendered ethnography with important implications for the study of the body and self-making.”
—Courtney Bender, Columbia University

Alchi
Treasure of the Himalayas
Peter van Ham
“One of the finest art books ever produced. . . . Working in extremely challenging conditions, particularly in the narrow, almost unreachable second and third stories of the Sumtsek, van Ham put together a masterpiece. . . . At the heart of van Ham’s artistic enterprise is his uncanny gift for showing us, in the paintings he has photographed, this continuous, ravishing evanescence. Once one takes in this truth of transience and sees, with open eyes, its logic and inherent wonder, the most remarkable feeling of freedom and happiness sets in.”—New York Review Daily

The New Prometheans
Faith, Science, and the Supernatural Mind in the Victorian Fin de Siècle
Courtenay Raia

“The New Prometheans is not just another in that long, footnoted list of books on nineteenth-century mesmerism, spiritualism, and Victorian psychical research. Instead, it’s a rich display of historical-critical readings, of biographical contextualizations, and of erudite philosophical discussions of the history of science, of technology, and of Western thought. A beautifully written and fascinating study.”

Visions of Sodom
H. G. Cocks

“This is a powerful and important book. . . . Cocks demonstrates not only how the ‘story of Sodom’s destruction is central to the history of homoerotic desire,’ but how its various inflections have been shaped by religious, political and cultural contingencies.”

Huxley’s Church and Maxwell’s Demon
From Theistic Science to Naturalistic Science
Matthew Stanley

“Moving well beyond the widespread assumption that modern science and religion are and always have been fundamentally antithetical to one another, [Stanley] offers a history of scientific naturalism that illustrates the deep and fundamental commonalities between positions on the proper practice of science that began to diverge relatively late.”

The Story of Radio Mind
A Missionary’s Journey on Indigenous Land
Pamela E. Klassen

“The Story of Radio Mind is a stunning account . . . Klassen has written a truly innovative book of the intersecting worlds of religion, nationalism, indigeneity, and technology in the late-nineteenth to early twentieth century. Klassen shows how Du Vernet was transformed by these intersections and how Du Vernet’s encounters with the ‘spiritual energies of the land on which he lived’ impacted his version of Christianity. . . . The Story of Radio Mind contributes to and builds upon a rapidly growing conversation about missionary work and its global implications, while it is also rooted in the local Canadian history of Caledonia.”

Christianity and Race in the American South
A History
Paul Harvey

“Harvey provides an excellent survey of the many ways southern people have told their story through arguments, ideas, visions, and dreams as well as practices and expressions. White theologians and evangelical believers are the major speakers and actors of a multiversed story. Readers hear the voices of whites and blacks, masters and slaves, those who are powerful and those who are without power. . . . Highly recommended.”

Renewal

Liberal Protestants and the American City after World War II

Mark Wild

“In this superb book, Wild taps a vast range of primary sources to piece together an eye-opening account of how a dynamic religious movement of urban renewal sought to save the post–World War II American city and mainline church from socioeconomic and spiritual crises of their own making. Cutting from Harlem to Houston, from Detroit to Los Angeles—and across the heart of the twentieth century—Wild elegantly captures the lofty hopes, street-level determination, unavoidable frustrations, and unsolvable paradoxes that shaded second-wave social gospelers’ radical theology and attendant quest to engage and heal the secular urban world. This is a major addition to the history of liberal religion, and political action, in the modern era.”

Prayers for the People

Homicide and Humanity in the Crescent City

Rebecca Louise Carter

“With captivating prose, Carter has written an excellent ethnographic and historical study of religion, love, death, and meaning making among a community plagued by violence in New Orleans. Rich in history and social context, Prayers for the People provides increased depth and complexity to the current literature on African American religion.”

—Marla Frederick, Harvard University

Filled with the Spirit

Sexuality, Gender, and Radical Inclusivity in a Black Pentecostal Church Coalition

Ellen Lewin

“[Filled with the Spirit] makes a significant contribution to scholarship on African American religion as well as religion and sexuality. . . . Written in an accessible style, the book is also exemplary in the way the author narrates her own experiences during the research and performs self-reflexivity with respect to her position as a white secular Jewish anthropologist who ‘never expected to study religion.’”

—Reading Religion

Crossing Parish Boundaries

Race, Sports, and Catholic Youth in Chicago, 1914-1954

Timothy B. Neary

“Crossing Parish Boundaries tells an unexpected story. Previous historians have depicted the high walls of segregation dividing white ethnic neighborhoods from Chicago’s African American ghettos. Yet in the middle decades of the twentieth century, Chicago’s Catholic Youth Organization promoted interracial sports. In an era otherwise characterized by deep ethnic tensions, even violence, especially between the children of immigrants and the new black migrants to the city, Neary shows us how local Catholic leaders and parishioners deliberately and successfully resisted the bigotry of their times.”

Religious Intolerance, America, and the World: A History of Forgetting and Remembering
John Corrigan

This book spans from Christian colonists’ intolerance of Native Americans and the role of religion in the new republic’s foreign-policy crises to Cold War witch hunts and the persecution complexes that entangle Christians and Muslims today. Corrigan reveals how US churches and institutions have continuously campaigned against intolerance overseas even as they’ve abetted or performed it at home. This timely, captivating book forces America to confront its claims of exceptionalism based on religious liberty—and perhaps begin to break the grotesque cycle of projection and oppression.

Conversionary Sites: Transforming Medical Aid and Global Christianity from Madagascar to Minnesota
Britt Halvorson

“Although the fields of humanitarianism, assistance, development, and charity have rapidly expanded over the past ten years, there is still relatively little written on the role of religious organizations. As such, this book is a much-needed contribution to a series of critical conversations about such assistance. Halvorson’s scholarship is exceptional, and her writing is clear, focused, and elegantly presented.”
—Melissa L. Caldwell, author of Dacha Idylls

Emptiness: Feeling Christian in America
John Corrigan

For Money and Elders: Ritual, Sovereignty, and the Sacred in Kenya
Robert W. Blunt

“For Money and Elders is a first-rate work of scholarship that offers a strikingly original and compelling account of the role of the Kikuyu in Kenya’s colonial history, focusing on the complex ways in which crucial ritual, religious, and political dynamics from the pre-colonial and colonial period have played out in the post-Kenyatta era. Blunt masterfully combines an acute understanding of long-term cultural and institutional dynamics with brilliant, finely-grained readings of local cosmologies and ritual practices to develop an important and exciting new political anthropology of the Kenyan state and postcolonial governance.”

Imagining Judeo-Christian America
Religion, Secularism, and the Redefinition of Democracy
K. Healan Gaston
“In this long-awaited masterpiece, Gaston offers an extraordinary account of how the contested notion of Judeo-Christian America was formed and transformed. Thanks to astounding research and a compelling framework, she has made a permanent contribution to our understanding of the era straddling World War II, when the idea of Judeo-Christianity came into its own. A monumental achievement.”—Samuel Moyn, Yale University

From Politics to the Pews
How Partisanship and the Political Environment Shape Religious Identity
Michele F. Margolis
“Anyone interested in the outsized role played by religion in American politics should read this book. So should anyone who doubts that politics and religion are deeply intertwined, as it will put those doubts to rest. In analyzing the connections, Margolis flips conventional wisdom on its head. Rather than the common assumption that religious beliefs shape people’s political views, she brilliantly demonstrates that for many Americans, their political views shape their religious identity. Quite simply, this book sets a new standard for the study of religion and politics—theoretically rich, empirically innovative, and beautifully written.”—David E. Campbell, University of Notre Dame

Days of Awe
Reimagining Jewishness in Solidarity with Palestinians
Atalia Omer
“In Days of Awe, Omer brings together interviews with activists, historical analysis, and theoretical interventions (drawing from religious studies and social movement theory, among other disciplines), all in the service of one of the first extended studies of this growing movement of American Jews standing against the Israeli occupation, and standing up for justice for Palestinians.”—The Nation
“A brilliant analysis of the religious as well as political stakes in American Jewish activism on behalf of Palestinians. . . . Omer shows that what is at stake is not simply political, but a re-fashioning of Jewishness itself, understood through the lens of collective repentance and self-criticism. A significant contribution to an often overly simplified and politically charged debate in American Jewry.”—Shaul Magid, Indiana University

Evolving God
A Provocative View on the Origins of Religion, Expanded Edition
Barbara J. King
“King . . . questions the compulsion to choose either evolution or belief. Anyone who recognizes that compulsion, internal or external, may profit from reading this brilliant book.”—Booklist
“King draws on cutting-edge research in primatology to demonstrate that once animals are capable of emotional attachments and cognitive empathy, they are ready for—and even appear to require—certain intangibles like a belief in something greater than themselves. . . . Fresh insights . . . lucid writing.”—Publishers Weekly

New Edition
The Rites of Passage, Second Edition
Arnold van Gennep
This landmark book explores how the life of an individual in any society can be understood as a succession of transitions: birth, puberty, marriage, parenthood, old age, and, finally, death. This new edition demonstrates how we can still make use of van Gennep’s enduring critical tools to understand our own social, religious, and political worlds, and even our personal and professional lives.

Animals in Religion
Devotion, Symbol and Ritual
Barbara Allen
“Allen highlights the mysterious alterity of nonhuman animals (such that they should not be reduced to things) and in turn leads the reader to discover, through a myriad of religious voices, these mysterious creatures as spiritual brethren.”—Ryan Patrick McLaughlin, Siena College
“This substantial, almost encyclopedic book will undoubtedly long be a standard reference for basic information on the myths and beliefs involving animals of the major world religions past and present.”—The Peaceable Table
