Conspiracies of Conspiracies
How Delusions Have Overrun America
Thomas Milan Konda
In this sweeping book, Thomas Konda traces the country’s obsession with conspiratorial thought from the early days of the Republic up to our own anxious moment. Conspiracies of Conspiracies details centuries of sinister speculations—from anti-Semitism and anti-Catholicism to UFOs and reptilian humanoids—and their often incendiary outcomes. Rather than simply rehashing the surface eccentricities of such theories, Konda draws from his unprecedented assemblage of conspiratorial writing to crack open the mindsets that lead people toward these self-sealing worlds of denial.

Cigarettes, Inc.
An Intimate History of Corporate Imperialism
Nan Enstad
“With this remarkable book, Enstad redefines the cutting edge of the new history of capitalism. Transnational sweep and local texture cohabit in Cigarettes, Inc., as do searching examinations of corporate power and shrewd discussions of culture and style.”—David Roediger, author of How Race Survived US History
“This engaging and thickly peopled account of the cigarette’s rise in China and the United States is essential reading for all of us who live in the world remade by the corporate form—from the commanding heights of law and trade to the intimate intricacies of social relationship and human bodies.”—Bethany Moreton, Dartmouth College

The Politics of Petulance
America in an Age of Immaturity
Alan Wolfe
“A withering broadside against the immaturity that infests American politics, revealing itself in populism and demagoguery. Both the left and the right take it on the chin in this tough-minded analysis by Wolfe . . . This is a persuasive and alarming book.”—Kirkus Reviews
“Wisdom is rare, political wisdom more so. Writing with characteristic lucidity and deep care for democracy’s future, Alan Wolfe’s mobilization of intellectual heroes and acute observations about popular suspicion and populist politics, narcissistic leadership and irresponsible simplification, offers an uncommon exception.”—Ira Katznelson, author of Fear Itself

Shaped by the State
Toward a New Political History of the Twentieth Century
Edited by Brent Cebul, Lily Geismer, and Mason B. Williams
“This is an original and unique anthology whose contributions offer theoretically sophisticated reassessments of the subfield of political history. Both capacious and generative, I know of no other work that comes close in offering so many fresh interpretations of twentieth-century US history and revisions of twentieth-century US historiography. The essays are well written and engaging, new and enlightening.”—Peter James Hudson, University of California, Los Angeles

A History of America in 100 Maps
Susan Schulten
Susan Schulten uses maps to explore five centuries of American history, from the voyages of European discovery to the digital age. With stunning visual clarity, A History of America in 100 Maps showcases the power of cartography to illuminate and complicate our understanding of the past. Audacious in scope and charming in execution, this collection of one hundred full-color maps offers an imaginative and visually engaging tour of American history that will show readers a new way of navigating their own worlds.

Beyond the Map
Unruly Enclaves, Ghostly Places, Emerging Lands and Our Search for New Utopias
Alastair Bonnett
“[Bonnett’s] work uncovering new islands as well as hidden enclaves, utopian societies and even rumored or magical places fills his new book Beyond the Map. . . . The book’s discoveries chart shifts in geology, climate, politics and culture with an optimistic sense of wanderlust.”—New York Times

“Ranging from downright funny to deadly serious, each chapter in this guide from social geography professor Bonnett takes the reader on a journey to an unusual location.”—Publishers Weekly

Christianity and Race in the American South
A History
Paul Harvey
“Harvey provides an excellent survey of the many ways southern people have told their story through arguments, ideas, visions, and dreams as well as practices and expressions. White theologians and evangelical believers are the major speakers and actors of a multiversed story. Readers hear the voices of whites and blacks, masters and slaves, those who are powerful and those who are without power. . . . Reflecting 25 years of writing, this book is worthy of careful reading and reflection. Highly recommended.”—Choice

Ku Klux Kulture
America and the Klan in the 1920s
Felix Harcourt
“An impressive work of archival history. . . . The book is essential reading, because it shows that, rather than a radical fringe group, the 1920s KKK was a central, well-respected part of white Protestant culture.”—The Forward

“Ku Klux Kulture breaks new ground. . . . A handy reference work that will be much used. . . . Harcourt piles on the evidence to support the book’s thesis that the Klan, both as subject and consumer, was at the center of American popular culture in the 1920s.”—Arkansas Review

“Van Cleve patiently examines the specific matters of public policy that vexed national politics in the mid-1780s. . . . What Van Cleve does demonstrate, persuasively, is that the genuine crisis of the Confederation required creating a “staggeringly powerful” national government through a “grand bargain” that went well beyond what any state might have asked for itself.” — The Washington Post

“Pashman has given us the first study of how legal order emerged from disorder during the American Revolution. He shows New Yorkers creating local committees to deal with the Loyalists among them and argues convincingly that the legitimacy of the legal institutions that later emerged rested on vigorously expropriating Loyalist property. A powerful statement that the new nation was built, at least in part, on retribution and redistribution.” — Bruce H. Mann, Harvard University

Henry David Thoreau
A Life
Laura Dassow Walls

“This new biography is the masterpiece that the gadfly of youthful America deserves. I have been reading Henry David Thoreau and reading about him for 40 years; I've written a book about him myself. Reconstructing the National Bank Controversy
Politics and Law in the Early American Republic
Eric Lomazoff
“A complex and sparkling reinterpretation of the debates over the constitutionality of the chartering of a national bank by Congress from its proposal by Alexander Hamilton in 1791 until its eventual dissolution in the 1830s. Whereas previous studies have portrayed this forty-year constitutional drama as a straightforward debate over the Necessary and Proper or Sweeping Clause of the Constitution, Lomazoff busts this pervasive myth by also highlighting the importance of the Coinage Clause. This is an important book.”—Alan Gibson, California State University, Chico

American Catholics and the Church of Tomorrow
Building Churches for the Future, 1925–1975
Catherine R. Osborne
“This book provides both a dazzling synthesis and a powerful new vision of modern church architecture. Osborne situates American modernist churches within the broad and deep context of Catholic progressive thought, governed by the biological paradigm of evolutionary change and organic development. She shows how concepts of church design were linked to understandings of the Church itself, beginning well before the Second Vatican Council. This should be required reading for architects and architectural historians, but also for students of Catholic thought and culture generally.”—Richard Kieckhefer, Northwestern University

Credulity
A Cultural History of US Mesmerism
Emily Ogden
“Mesmerism is an enthralling subject, and Emily Ogden has produced a particularly subtle history of its multiple embodiments in the nineteenth-century United States. . . . Throughout the book Ogden displays an impressive command over (and rapport with) her mesmerist archive. She uses that familiarity to question the ways in which scholars have been too enamored with enlightened notions of autonomy, agency, and empowerment to appreciate fully the mischief-making of mediums, somnambulists, and mesmeric subjects. . . . The Gateway to the Pacific
Japanese Americans and the Remaking of San Francisco
Meredith Oda

Focusing on the development of the Japanese Cultural and Trade Center in San Francisco in the decades following World War II, Meredith Oda shows how a multilayered story was embedded within a larger story of the changing institutions and ideas that were shaping the city. During these formative decades, Oda argues, San Francisco’s relations with and ideas about Japan were being forged within the intimate, local sites of civic and community life. San Francisco’s story is an inherently local one, but it is also a broader story of a city collectively, if not cooperatively, reimagining its place in a global economy.

The Mourning After
Loss and Longing among Midcentury American Men
John Ibson

“The Mourning After is a creatively researched and compellingly written exposition of American culture’s deep discomfort with affection between midcentury men. Just as important, Ibson is concerned with the consequences of this antipathy toward same-sex intimacy, for gay and straight men alike, and for their families. A profound and moving account.”—Nicholas L. Syrett, University of Kansas

Renewal
Liberal Protestants and the American City after World War II
Mark Wild

In the decades following World War II, a movement of clergy and laity sought to restore liberal Protestantism to the center of American urban life. Renewal explores the rise and fall of this movement, which began as a simple effort to restore the church’s standing but wound up as nothing less than an openhearted crusade to remake our nation’s cities.

Rivalry and Reform
Presidents, Social Movements, and the Transformation of American Politics
Sidney M. Milkis and Daniel J. Tichenor
“In their timely and deeply illuminating book, Milkis and Tichenor examine the ‘uneasy partnerships’ between presidents and social movements, which have transformed the nation during key junctures in American history. Rivalry and Reform makes a critical intervention in the debate about ‘top down’ versus ‘bottom up’ social change. Megan Feeney

“Hollywood in Havana is thoughtful in its conception, astute in its argument, ambitious in its research, and elegant in its articulation. Feeney’s argument—that the values and behaviors seen in Hollywood films from the first half of the twentieth century positioned Habaneros to demand new and revolutionary rights and privileges—is original and compelling. This book’s transnational border-crossing style is particularly effective and exceedingly relevant as the United States begins to normalize relations with Cuba.” —Ann Marie Stock, College of William & Mary

Cuba
A Cultural History
Alan West-Durán

“For anyone wanting to get inside the fascinating mystery of the role which culture (in all senses) has played in the evolution, character, and survival of the post-1959 Cuban Revolution, this book is ideal. In the hands of someone who really knows the field and understands the complexities of that often baffling political phenomenon, the whole subject is treated here with welcome subtlety and depth, and we are all better informed as a result.” —Antoni Kapcia, author of Cuba in Revolution

Bankers and Empire
How Wall Street Colonized the Caribbean
Peter James Hudson

“Hudson has produced an exceptionally well-researched study of the expansion of U.S. banking in the Caribbean and Central America from the 1890s to the 1930s... The level of detail that Hudson deploys is truly impressive... Hudson’s masterful account will be the essential starting point for studies of capitalism and empire in the Caribbean.” —Business History Review

Bulls Markets
Chicago’s Basketball Business and the New Inequality
Sean Dinces

“Bulls Markets is a terrific book: fine sports history... and excellent urban history. Dinces reveals how wealthy owners hijack our beloved teams, and how politicians and league cartels do the bidding of the rich. Drilling deep into the story of the Bulls and Chicago, Dinces shows us that sports are part of the larger transformation of contemporary cities. Meticulously researched and beautifully written, this is an important book for anyone interested in urban history, politics, and economics.”—Elliott Gorn, Loyola University Chicago

The Human Body in the Age of Catastrophe
Britleness, Integration, Science, and the Great War
Stefanos Geroulanos and Todd Meyers
“A shared concept of human individuality lies at the heart of intellectual traditions as varied as psychoanalysis, cybernetics, and medical humanism: an individuality knowable only at the moment of its collapse. This is the remarkable argument of The Human Body in the Age of Catastrophe, a provocative and poignant book, and one that will be essential reading for historians of modern science and medicine.”—Deborah Coen, Yale University

Versailles 1919
A Centennial Perspective
Alan Sharp
Fully revised and updated for the centennial of the Paris Peace Conference, Versailles 1919 sets the ramifications of the Paris Peace treaties—for good or ill—within a long-term context. Alan Sharp mounts a powerful argument that the responsibility for Europe’s continuing interwar instability cannot be wholly attributed to the peacemakers of 1919–23. Concise and convincing, Versailles 1919 is a clear guide to the global legacy of the Versailles Settlement.

Stumbling Towards Victory
The Final Year of the Great War
Edited by Martyn Lawrence
Presenting more than one hundred photographs from the archives of the Royal Armouries, many never before published and all taken during the final twelve months of the war, it reveals broken landscapes, shattered trees, ruined buildings, blighted lives. Yet at the same time, amid the horror, we glimpse hope—hope that the end might truly be in sight, and that the lesson of the war might never be forgotten. A towering document of an unprecedented human tragedy, Stumbling Towards Victory is a fitting document for the end of the centennial commemorations of World War I.

The Languages of Scandinavia

Seven Sisters of the North
Ruth H. Sanders

“This book focuses on contacts, colonialism, conflicts and causes of friction, and the resulting language developments from a macro perspective, investigating the Scandinavian languages from the point of view of their contacts rather than as static entities. . . . It furthermore supplies a well-written introduction to the phonology, orthography, grammar, and linguistic varieties of each of the seven languages. It is especially laudable that Sámi and Faroese are included here, and that all ‘seven sisters’ appear on an equal footing. A People’s History of the Russian Revolution
Neil Faulkner

“Among the countless books which are beginning to appear as the centenary of the Russian Revolution approaches, there is a real need for a clear, historically reliable popular account from a socialist perspective. Faulkner’s People’s History is that account. Arguing against both right-wing myths that reduce October to a mere coup, and left-sectarian myths that treat of the Bolshevik party as an infallible ‘democratic centralist’ monolithic, Faulkner forcefully reminds us that the early years of the Russian Revolution saw one of the greatest explosions of mass democracy in human history.”—Neil Davidson, author of We Cannot Escape History: Nations, States, and Revolutions

Palmyra
An Irreplaceable Treasure
Paul Veyne
Translated by Teresa Lavender Fagan
“Veyne, the most eminent living historian of Rome, has written an elegiac lament on the meaning for world history of this looted city. His short book describes how Palmyra, an oasis on the route across the north Syrian desert, around the turn of the common era became immensely wealthy as a staging post in the trade route from the Roman Empire to the Parthian Kingdom and the lands beyond as far as India and China. . . Veyne’s account offers an excellent survey of the relationship between the city and the wider Roman Empire.”—Times Literary Supplement

The Greeks
Philip Matyszak
The Greeks illuminates the lives of the Greek soldiers, statesmen, scientists, and philosophers who laid the foundations of what we call “Greek culture” today—though they seldom, if ever, set foot on the Greek mainland. This book offers a fresh look at what it meant to be Greek by instead telling the story of the Greeks abroad, from modern-day India to Spain.

The Merits of Women
Wherein Is Revealed Their Nobility and Their Superiority to Men
Moderata Fonte
Edited and with an Introduction by Virginia Cox
Foreword by Dacia Maraini
Written on the cusp of Shakespeare’s heyday, and straddling the centuries between the feminist works of Christine de Pizan and Mary Wollstonecraft. Elegantly presented for a general audience, this is a must-read, the perfect subtle gift for anyone who needs a refresher on the merits of women and their superiority to men.

Lost Maps of the Caliphs
Drawing the World in Eleventh-Century Cairo
Yossef Rapoport and Emilie Savage-Smith
“This book starts with an exciting account of the discovery of the manuscript of the Book of Curiosities and the growing realization of its importance, a great story in itself. Since then the text has been published with admirable speed. This book is the first scholarly discussion of the maps, their sources, and their place in the history of Arab cartography. . . . Like the manuscript itself, this companion volume vastly enhances our understanding of the classical Arabic world view in all its rich complexity.”—Hugh N. Kennedy, University of London

The Ormesby Psalter
Patrons and Artists in Medieval East Anglia
Frederica C. E. Law-Turner
“The majestic Ormesby Psalter is a triumph of medieval English manuscript illumination. Frederica Law-Turner clearly and elegantly explains the book’s often enigmatic imagery. The fascinating history of the tome, which took some three quarters of a century to make, reads like one of Ellis Peters’ Chronicles of Brother Cadfael. The saga involves an engagement, a stolen wardship, an ambitious ecclesiastic, and a falling steeple—a story well told.”—Roger S. Wieck, The Morgan Library & Museum

Under Osman’s Tree
The Ottoman Empire, Egypt, and Environmental History
Alan Mikhail
Winner of a Choice Magazine Outstanding Academic Title Award
“Under Osman’s Tree frames the Ottoman Empire as an ecosystem. By emphasizing the complex relationships between imperial power and nature, Mikhail introduces a dizzying range of human and nonhuman actors, demonstrating how animals, water, silt, microbes, trees, and volcanoes might recast more traditional readings of sultans, bureaucrats, and peasants. . . . Mikhail offers another trailblazing contribution to the burgeoning field of Middle Eastern environmental history.”—Environmental History

Laughing Shall I Die
Lives and Deaths of the Great Vikings
Tom Shippey
“Today, much of the popular discourse on the Vikings tends to be directed towards the rehabilitation of medieval Europe’s northerly inhabitants as respectable people. In Laughing Shall I Die, Shippey blows this longship out of the water with a thought-provoking and entertaining exploration of the Viking mind-set, which he describes variously as ‘psychopathic’ and a ‘death cult’. . . . Throughout, Shippey’s distinctive voice comes across loud and clear: conversational, intelligent, irreverent, darkly comic—not unlike the Old Norse sagas and poems he explores.”—Literary Review

The Invention of Madness
State, Society, and the Insane in Modern China
Emily Baum
“This book makes significant headway toward illuminating our understanding of mental illness and healing in a period that was central to the emergence of the modern Chinese state. Emily Baum has identified important sources and developed a fascinating narrative that presents the formation of a recognizably modern psychiatry in China.”—Richard C. Sacred Mandates
Asian International Relations since Chinggis Khan
Edited by Timothy Brook, Michael van Walt van Praag, Miek Boltjes
“Sacred Mandates achieves a fundamental and sweeping revision to how we think about nation-states and nationalism. The scholarship is cutting-edge, and the contributors are all established scholars—the leaders in their fields and subfields. Nowhere else can readers find such impressive scholarship on the deep historical roots of Inner and East Asian international relations in one volume, let alone one that is well written and clearly organized like this.”—James Carter, St. Joseph’s University

Critical Terms for the Study of Africa
Edited by Gaurav Desai and Adeline Masquelier

“Critical Terms for African Studies will serve as a sourcebook for connecting contemporary African Studies not only to the classical canon but also to the specific regional, global, and colonial history that forged the concept of Africa.” — Sasha Newell, Université libre de Bruxelles

No Exit
Arab Existentialism, Jean-Paul Sartre, and Decolonization
Yoav Di-Capua

“A tour de force, No Exit provides an absorbing, sensitive, and yet complex and multi-stranded narrative of the sense of intellectual excitement and political frustration that marked Arab intellectuals’ engagement with Sartre and existentialism in the 1960s.” — Dipesh Chakrabarty, University of Chicago

King of Kings
The Triumph and Tragedy of Emperor Haile Selassie I of Ethiopia
Asfa-Wossen Asserate

“This rather splendid book . . . can best be described as a sober and rational assessment of the extremely long and complex life of the most eminent African ruler of the 20th century.” — Literary Review

Moving Against the System
The 1968 Congress of Black Writers and the Shaping of Global Black Consciousness
Edited by David Austin

With never-before-seen texts from Stokely Carmichael, Walter Rodney, and C. L. R. James, these documents will prove invaluable to anyone interested in black radical thought and political activism of the 1960s.

Animal Labor and Colonial Warfare
James L. Hevia

“The role of animals in colonial conquest along the northwestern frontier of British India has never been subjected to scholarly analysis of the sort provided by this path-breaking book. . . . Hevia details how changing relations between humans and animals can provide a critical key to understanding the transformations that have marked modern colonial history.” — David Gilmartin, North Carolina State University

Making Time
Astronomical Time Measurement in Tokugawa Japan
Yulia Frumer

“Historically brilliant and beautifully written, Frumer unfolds how and why astronomical time-space relationships came to matter in Tokugawa and Meiji scientific minds and public life. . . . One emerges from reading it inspired and positively provoked, realizing the lived truth of Einstein’s theory: time indeed flows at different rates for different systems.” — Dagmar Schäfer, Max Planck Institute, Berlin

A Radical History of the World
Neil Faulkner
This is a history of humans engaged in struggles—the hominid and the hunter, the emperor and the slave, the dictator and the revolutionary. Reading against the grain of mainstream histories, Neil Faulkner reveals that what happened in the past has never been predetermined. From antiquity to feudalism, and from fascism to our precarious political present, choices have always been numerous and complex, and the possible outcomes have ranged broadly between liberation and barbarism.

Voices of 1968
Documents from the Global North
Edited by Laurence Cox, Salar Mohandesi, and Bjarke Skærlund Risager
“This extraordinary collection brings together the great manifestos, political programs, and other original writings that inspired—and were inspired by—the movements and uprisings of 1968... Indispensable for anyone interested in the global upheavals of that annum mirabilis.” — Jeff Goodwin, New York University

Thinking in the Past Tense
Eight Conversations
Alexander Bevilacqua and Frederic Clark

“In an age dominated by the sound bite and the tweet, it can be hard to resist the melancholy conclusion that the humanities are in crisis and that scholarship no longer beckons as a spiritual vocation. Thinking in the Past Tense offers reason for hope. In this intimate gallery of portraits we come face to face with eight distinguished practitioners of early modern intellectual history, and we are reminded once again of the traditional virtues of erudition and philological precision that continue to sustain this field even at a time when historical understanding seems under siege.”—Peter E. Gordon, Harvard University

Savages, Romans, and Despots
Thinking about Others from Montaigne to Herder
Robert Launay

“Launay has taken a familiar theme and utterly transformed it. No other account of the European self-imagining through the mirror of multiple others covers so wide a range of peoples and places with such acuity and verve as he has done—this is an original, compelling, and persuasive book.”—Anthony Pagden, University of California, Los Angeles

Thinking About History
Sarah Maza

“According to Wineburg, the issue is not that students are ignorant of names and dates. . . . It’s more of a tragedy, he argues, that students are made to memorize facts instead of learning the critical-thinking skills that equip their minds to discern context, sniff out biases, and employ reasoned skepticism when evaluating sources. . . . Why Learn History provides clear advice to history teachers about what they can do to improve digital media literacy.”—Perspectives on History

Friending the Past
The Sense of History in the Digital Age
Alan Liu

“Friending the Past is the culmination of decades of research and thinking about our relation to the past and our own histories in an age when presentism is, well, all too present. . . . Liu interrogates such key ideas as narratives of media change, the multiplicity of ideologies that accumulate under the banner of linearity, and the shift to multilinear hypergraphical representations. . . . States of Terror
History, Theory, Literature
David Simpson

David Simpson offers here a philology of terror, tracking the concept’s long, complicated history across literature, philosophy, political science, and theology—from Plato to NATO. Introducing the concept of the “fear-terror cluster,” Simpson is able to capture the wide range of terms that we have used to express extreme emotional states over the centuries—from anxiety, awe, and concern to dread, fear, and horror. He shows that the choices we make among such words to describe shades of feeling have seriously shaped the attribution of motives, causes, and effects of the word “terror” today, particularly when violence is deployed by or against the state.

Hayek and the Evolution of Capitalism
Naomi Beck
“This brief volume offers a critical memorial for Hayek, the free-market prophet, from the perspective of his later works. . . . Recommend-ed.”—Choice
“This is a beautifully presented critique—in the classic sense of the word—of some of Friedrich Hayek’s later work on the evolution of liberal capitalism. Throughout, Beck imparts a clarity to Hayek’s theory of cultural evolution that can sometimes remain elusive in Hayek’s own writings. As the son of cemetery managers, Sloane brings personal experience and knowledge to an otherwise academic history of burial methods, mourning, and memorials. . . . This is a great overview of mourning rituals in modern American culture.”—Publishers Weekly

NSA
In Bountiful Empire, Priscilla Mary Isin examines the changing meanings of the Ottoman Empire’s foodways as they evolved over more than five centuries. Isin begins by examining the earlier culinary traditions in which Ottoman cuisine was rooted, such as those of the Central Asian Turks, Abbasids, Seljuks, and Byzantines, then explores the diverse aspects of this rich culinary culture, including etiquette, cooks, restaurants, military food, food laws, and food trade. This meticulously researched volume offers fresh and lively insight into an empire and cuisine that until recent decades have been too narrowly viewed from an orientalist perspective.

Empire of Tea

The Asian Leaf that Conquered the World

Markman Ellis, Richard Coulton, and Matthew Mauger

“Bearing an attractive title, this book details the process of how, from the 17th century, tea entered England, and Europe in general, and became a favored drink for both the social elite as well as the working class. . . . A mandatory read for anyone interested in learning about how tea ‘conquered the [Western] world.’ . . . Essential.” — Choice

2015 328 p. 6 1/4 x 9 1/4 14 color plates, 63 halftones

Teatimes

A World Tour

Helen Saberi

“Elegantly written, this book provides a sparkling and affectionate evocation of tea, its social nuances, and mouth-watering accompaniments in all their manifold glory. A book for anyone who loves a good cuppa.” — Laura Mason, food historian

2018 256 p. 7 1/2 x 9 3/4 130 color plates, 30 halftones

Dessert

A Tale of Happy Endings

Jeri Quinzio

“Tracing the history of desserts and the way they, and the course itself, have evolved over time, Quinzio begins before dessert was a separate course—when sweets and savories were mixed on the table—and concludes in the present, when homely desserts are enjoying a revival, and as molecular gastronomists are creating desserts an alchemist would envy. Illustrated and featuring recipes; texts from chefs, writers, and diarists; and extracts from cookbooks, menus, newspapers, and magazines.

“Dessert is a perfectly delightful romp through the history of puddings and cakes and custards, everything from syllabubs to strawberry ice cream. Bring a big spoon.” — Ken Albala

2018 272 p. 6 1/2 x 8 3/4 100 color plates, 10 halftones

Literary Hoaxes and Cultural Authenticity

Christopher L. Miller

“In this book, Miller takes us on an exciting tour of postcolonial and world literature, guiding us through the literary maze of the real and the pretenders to the real, sorting out fact from fiction in a world where the two are often part of each other. All fiction is hoax, but not all hoax is fiction; it is just that, a hoax. In the process, he helps us think through issues of authenticity and false authenticity, identity and stolen identities. In this era of accusations and counteraccusations of fake news, I can’t think of a study more relevant to our times.”—Ngugi wa Thiong’o, author of Wizard of the Crow

2018 272 p. 6 x 9 16 halftones

Now in Paperback

Loving Literature

A Cultural History

Deidre Shauna Lynch

“[Lynch’s] investigation into the way late-18th- and early 19th-century readers felt and expressed their love of books is beautifully focused . . . Like so many great arguments—Said’s on Orientalism, Anderson’s on the Nation, Butler’s on Performativity—Lynch’s argument will be loved because it speaks both to and for us, of things we already knew but in terms that are historically astute.”—Los Angeles Review of Books

2015 352 p. 6 x 9 13 halftones

Singing in the Age of Anxiety

Lieder Performances in New York and London between the World Wars

Laura Tunbridge

“[The book’s] interest and achievement are to show how a quintessentially Austro-German art form, grounded in the German language and deeply implicated in both German nationalism and German Romanticism, was transmitted into the late twentieth century and beyond, to become in the LP age the hallmark of cosmopolitan and civilized music-making. . . . Tunbridge’s tracing of the ups and downs of lieder singing in translation is subtle and extensive.”—The New York Review of Books

2018 256 p. 6 x 9 13 halftones

Pick Up the Pieces

Excerpts in Seventies Music

John Corbett

An inviting mix of skilled music criticism and cultural observation, Pick Up the Pieces is also a coming-of-age story, tracking the author’s absorption in music as he grows from age seven to seventeen. Along with entertaining personal observations and stories, Corbett includes little-known insights on musicians from Pink Floyd, Joni Mitchell, James Brown, and Fleetwood Mac to the Residents, Devo, Gal Costa, and Julius Hemphill.

2019 400 p. 6 x 9

Rave On

Global Adventures in Electronic Dance Music

Matthew Collin

“A surprisingly rich and resonant analysis of global dance culture. . . . With a DJ’s skill for the emotive build and drop, [Collin] deftly organizes these essays to illuminate club culture’s role in saving cities from bland gentrification; the health of the underground speaking volumes about the health of the society above.”—Sunday Times

2018 384 p. 6 x 9 13 halftones

Vaudeville Melodies

Popular Musicians and Mass Entertainment in American Culture, 1870-1929

Nicholas Gebhardt

2017 208 p. 6 x 9

Art in Chicago
A History from the Fire to Now
Edited by Maggie Taft and Robert Cozzolino
“The most comprehensive treatment of the topic to date. . . . The book conspicuously lacks timelines and keywords, avoiding the encyclopaedic approach of past efforts. At the heart of this new history is instead a compelling story about how artistic identity is formed in the shadows. . . . All of these topics are deeply covered in the book’s excellent essays.”—Art Newspaper
2018 448 p. 9 1/4 x 11 160 color plates, 29 halftones

Designs of Destruction
The Making of Monuments in the Twentieth Century
Lucia Allais
“Designs of Destruction brilliantly intertwines and so profoundly reconfigures heretofore separate histories of both modern architecture and monument preservation.”—Daniel M. Abramson, Boston University
2018 432 p. 7 x 10 14 color plates, 123 halftones

Imaginary Cities
A Tour of Dream Cities, Nightmare Cities, and Everywhere in Between Darran Anderson
“A compendium of fantasy cities that takes its cue from Marco Polo via Italo Calvino’s Invisible Cities, this remarkable survey reveals the influence that the metropolis of the mind has had on the real thing.”—Financial Times, Best Books of the Year
2017 576 p. 5 3/8 x 8 1/2

Now in Paperback
Vivian Maier
A Photographer’s Life and Afterlife
Pamela Bannos
“Meticulously researched. . . . Bannos’s biography is a vital contribution to understanding the historical relevance of Maier’s work and an important challenge to the way in which Maier’s work and legacy have been represented thus far.”—Publishers Weekly
2017 352 p. 6 x 9 30 halftones

Dragon
Fear and Power
Martin Arnold
“From Norse mythology to Game of Thrones, dragons have soared through legend across continents and centuries. By turns scholarly and vivid (it’s still hard not to be captivated by the stories themselves), this book travels from China to Scandinavia in a bid to track down the meaning behind the myth. Dragons, it seems, have at various times represented both authority and a threat to it.”—History Revealed
