Volume 6: Cartography in the Twentieth Century
Edited by Mark Monmonier

For more than thirty years, the History of Cartography Project has charted the course for scholarship on cartography, bringing together research from a variety of disciplines on the creation, dissemination, and use of maps. Volume 6, Cartography in the Twentieth Century, continues this tradition with a groundbreaking survey of the century just ended and a new full-color, encyclopedic format. The lavishly produced volume includes more than five hundred articles accompanied by more than a thousand images. Hundreds of expert contributors provide original research, often based on their own participation in the developments they describe, as well as interpretations of larger trends in cartography.

A HISTORY OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY IN 100 MAPS
Tim Bryars and Tom Harper
Tim Bryars and Tom Harper recount through one hundred maps a narrative of the twentieth century’s key events and developments.

“Charts the political and social upheavals of the last century by means of maps, digging below the functional surface to reveal how maps of the time reflected popular ideas, prejudices, and waves of progress. . . . The highly eclectic result serves in itself as a reminder of the myriad ways in which we see and interpret the world around us.” — Huffington Post

LONDON: A HISTORY IN MAPS
Peter Barber

“With each page, we witness London’s horizontal and vertical expansion. The collected work of London’s cartographers shows urban mass as a living entity, pushing forever outward.” — New York Journal of Books

“A skillful balance between the city’s shape-shifting actuality and the various fantasies, cherished by everybody from Christopher Wren to the Luftwaffe, of what the place, with a few crucial tweaks, might become.” — Times Literary Supplement

LONDON
The Selden Map and the Making of a Global City, 1549–1689
Robert K. Batchelor

“A palimpsest of layers of predominantly English and Asian history mediated through the libraries and map collecting of East Asian, especially Chinese material, by Europeans and especially in London and Oxford during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.” — Journal of Historical Geography

 “[Batchelor] shows how the skein of shipping routes on the Selden map were connected with the rise of London as a global city.” — Economist

MAPPING SHAKESPEARE’S WORLD
Peter Whitfield

It has often been said that setting is irrelevant to Shakespeare’s plays. Peter Whitfield shows that, on the contrary, many of Shakespeare’s locations were carefully chosen for their ability to convey subtle meanings an Elizabethan audience would have picked up on and understood.

ROME MEASURED AND IMAGINED
Early Modern Maps of the Eternal City
Jessica Maier

“Maier’s splendid, engaging book tracks the elusive art of portraying Rome on paper, both ‘the ineffable ancient city’ and ‘its tangible modern twin,’ from the Eternal City’s resurgence in the fifteenth century to its affirmation as a modern European capital in Giambattista Nolli’s monumental urban plan of 1748, writing with a sprezzatura worthy of that sparkling era.”
—Ingrid Rowland, University of Notre Dame

“Maier’s sweeping survey of Renaissance efforts to represent Rome’s complex urban topography will be of great interest to historians of art, architecture, urban design, cartography, and print culture.”

ANCIENT PERSPECTIVES
Maps and Their Place in Mesopotamia, Egypt, Greece, and Rome
Edited by Richard J. A. Talbert

“Edited and introduced masterfully by Richard J. A. Talbert, [Ancient Perspectives] contains must-read essays for all those interested in the history of these earliest forms of cartography. . . . A truly wonderful read, and with its updated research and bibliography, [it] certainly represents one of most important additions to the scholarship on ancient cartography published in recent years. I could not recommend it more.”

SEA MONSTERS ON MEDIEVAL AND RENAISSANCE MAPS
Chet Van Duzer

“The sea monsters depicted throughout Van Duzer’s beautifully illustrated British Library volume strike absolute wonder in the reader today, and the author provides valuable insight into what medieval and Renaissance viewers must have made of these sinewy, silly, horned, fanged, and fearsome creatures.”

GLOBES
400 Years of Exploration, Navigation, and Power
Sylvia Sumira

“A beautifully photographed tour of the British Library’s collection of globes. There are terrestrial globes, celestial globes, pocket globes, globes of the moon, and a decadent blue globe made in China in the early 1600s. Together, they suggest something beyond precision: a reverent effort to make sense of the mysterious place we plant our feet.”—Boston Globe Brainiac Blog

CAPITALISM AND CARTOGRAPHY IN THE DUTCH GOLDEN AGE
Elizabeth A. Sutton

“Sutton analyzes the history of the Dutch republic and the maps that supported its capitalist and colonial society through a lens that puts the seventeenth century in chilling conversation with our world today. Her close readings of illustrated maps and early modern texts, ranging in subject from Calvinist theology to property law and political philosophy, create a compelling argument for the role maps played in amplifying the power of Amsterdam elites.”—Dawn Odell, Lewis & Clark College

Trading Territories
Mapping the Early Modern World
Jerry Brotton

Jerry Brotton contends that the historical preoccupation with Columbus’s “discovery” of the New World in 1492 has tended to obscure the importance of the mapping of “eastern” territories.

“In this outstanding study of maps and mapping, Jerry Brotton reveals a dynamism in the transaction between East and West beyond anything we have previously appreciated.”—Lisa Jardine, Queen Mary University of London

WORLDLY CONSUMERS
The Demand for Maps in Renaissance Italy
Genevieve Carlton

“An ingenious study of how and why ordinary people began to buy maps at unprecedented rates. These Renaissance maps may have represented the globe and its territories in a new and ‘rational’ way, but, as Carlton shows, they remained loaded with meaning. Maps were more than tools of state policy; they also became objects of consumer delight and display. Her exacting study—based on a subtle reading of new evidence from Venice and Florence—shows how Europeans embraced these more accurate pictures of the world to fashion more motile identities for themselves.”—Ken Alder, Northwestern University

SIDEWALK CITY
Remapping Public Space in Ho Chi Minh City
Annette Miae Kim

“Sidewalk City is visually powerful, socially explanatory, and politically revealing. Kim delivers an exceptionally rich contribution to the emerging domain of urban humanities with her multilayered close analysis of a seemingly prosaic socio-spatial environment—the sidewalks of Ho Chi Minh City. As such, she provides as much creative clarity to those interested in photography, multi-media art, and critical cartography as she does to those who care about economic development, property rights, urban planning, public policy, and ethnographic method.”—Lawrence J. KOREA
A Cartographic History
John Rennie Short

“A comprehensive and highly interesting examination of Korea through maps. . . . Korea is a pleasure to read, a fully satisfying and rich foray into a fascinating country as seen, by itself and by others, through maps. The archival work, methodological elegance, and convincing argumentation and writing create a scintillating exploration of and guidebook to all things cartographically related to a place that has sometimes been relegated to ‘wedge’ position between great powers (China and Japan, or communism and capitalism, as the case may be).”—Cartographica

A HISTORICAL ATLAS OF TIBET
Karl E. Ryavec

“This is, quite simply, an incredible advance for Tibetan studies and Asian studies in general. Nothing of the kind exists elsewhere—these easily readable, beautiful maps are a tremendous contribution, for their scope and ambition, and for the innovative approach their maker has taken with them, such as the fascinating incorporation of long-scale timeframes. The result is one of the most up-to-date overviews of Tibetan history, grounded by a deep familiarity with primary and secondary data and distilled into a gorgeous format.”—Gary Tuttle, Columbia University

THE MYSTERIES OF THE MARCO POLO MAPS
Benjamin B. Olshin

“Olshin’s book tugs powerfully at the imagination of anybody interested in the Polo story, medieval history, old maps, geographical ideas, European voyages of discovery, and early Chinese legends.”—Wall Street Journal

“A valiant attempt to make sense of these documents, applying scholarly analysis from several different points of view: cartographic, mythological, historical, and linguistic. . . . Olshin is a thorough and thoughtful researcher and has successfully avoided speculating on the veracity of these frustrating and intriguing manuscripts.”—Portolan

“[Nigg’s] newest book . . . is itself a neat trick. Unfold the book jacket to reveal a poster-sized reproduction of a richly detailed map of Scandinavia that dates to 1539. The seas on the map are littered with fantastic creatures, such as a sea unicorn and a giant worm that wraps itself around a big ship. Nigg is an extremely capable guide through the treacherous waters.” —Boston Globe

THE ICON CURTAIN
The Cold War’s Quiet Border
Yuliya Komska
“Komska’s research focuses on the Bohemian Forest on the border moving up and down between the western side of Czechoslovakia and the West German border. Her work not only explores a less-studied locus of Cold War tension, but it also aims to deepen our understanding of the Iron Curtain by looking at representations rather than events. . . . The content is enlightening and she demonstrates how using geographical, literary and visual sources can greatly enhance our understanding of this era.”—Times Higher Education
2015 288 p. 6 x 9 32 halftones
44 Cloth ISBN: 978-0-226-15419-0 $45.00 Your Price: $36.00

FATAL ISOLATION
The Devastating Paris Heat Wave of 2003
Richard C. Keller
“A riveting account of the social, cultural, and political forces that made France so vulnerable during the historic 2003 heat wave, and a cautionary tale about the dangers of urban life on an overheated planet. Along the way, Richard Keller takes up deep and unsettling questions about what we can and cannot know about the recent past.”—Eric Klinenberg, author of Heat Wave: A Social Autopsy of Disaster in Chicago
2015 240 p. 6 x 9 27 halftones, 2 line drawings

THE BIRTH OF TERRITORY
Stuart Elden
“Elden discusses, both copiously and elegantly, writings from Homer to Rousseau bearing witness to how place and power can be understood. From the Iliad to the Social Contract, territory, he concludes, is best defined in terms of political technology, the latter a lens through which the term resembles a mosaic of modes of measure and control. . . . The stunning virtue of The Birth of Territory is found in its sweep and intellectual panache.”—Imago Mundi
2013 512 p. 6 x 9 9 halftones, 6 line drawings

MASTERING THE NIGER
James MacQueen’s African Geography and the Struggle over Atlantic Slavery
David Lambert
“A skillful, scholarly, and authoritative work, one which demonstrates the authority vested in official and unofficial forms of geographical knowledge and which shows how geographical knowledge about the Niger was, vitally, deeply implicated in that commerce in sugar, slaves, and money which linked west Africa, Caribbean plantations, counting houses in Glasgow, and the uncertainties on maps as to which way the river ran and where it met its end.”—Journal of Historical Geography
2013 320 p. 6 x 9 28 halftones

AFTER PRESERVATION
Saving American Nature in the Age of Humans
Edited by Ben A. Minteer and Stephen J. Pyne

“Although environmentalists have traditionally held onto a preservationist philosophy in fending off ecological harms, the omnipresence of human influence makes many now wonder if that approach is still feasible. In this collection of twenty-three spirited and thought-provoking essays, scientists, historians, and activists alike represent a broad spectrum of viewpoints.”—Booklist

2015 240 p. 6 x 9 18 halftones, 1 line drawing

TREES, WOODS AND FORESTS
A Social and Cultural History
Charles Watkins

“With Watkins we walk a Neolithic ‘road’ of ash planks, delight in Pliny’s description of German forests as ‘untouched by the ages and coeval with the world,’ celebrate the rise of scientific forestry and ponder the diseases and creeping urbanization now threatening the future of these stupendous organisms.”—Nature

THE EARTH SERIES

AIR
Nature and Culture
Peter Adey

“How do you write a cultural and scientific history of something that is usually invisible and completely taken for granted? Peter Adey has accepted the challenge and attempts to make sense of air and the ways it has shaped our physical and technological development . . . The author effortlessly merges geography with social history and scientific theory.”—Geographical Magazine

2014 224 p. 5/8 x 8/12 70 color plates, 30 halftones

ISLANDS
Nature and Culture
Stephen A. Royle

“Royle provides a comprehensive gateway to understanding what makes islands unique in ecology, geology and culture. He examines islands as enchanted, experimental and utopian worlds.”—Geographical Magazine

2014 224 p. 5/8 x 8/12 70 color plates, 30 halftones

THE SOCIAL ATLAS OF EUROPE
Dimitris Dallas, Danny Dorling, and Benjamin D. Hennig

“An insightful look at today’s Europe—not through the artifices of geographic boundaries or gross national products, but through the underlying realities that Europeans live every day—their understandings, attitudes, and well-being—all brought to life in charts and maps that reveal the human geography of this vitally important area of the world.”—Robert B. Reich, University of California, Berkeley

Distributed for Policy Press
2014 256 p. 7/2 x 10/2 illustrated in color throughout

THE SOFT ATLAS OF AMSTERDAM
Hand Drawn Perspectives from Daily Life
Jan Rothuizen

The drawings, which are best described as written maps or graphic reportages, portray recognizable elements of each location, yet are stylized in a highly original manner that reflects Jan Rothuizen’s excellent eye for detail.

Distributed for Amsterdam University Press
2014 96 p. 9 x 11 1/4 illustrated in halftones throughout
VIEWS OF NATURE
Edited by Stephen T. Jackson and Laura Dassow Walls
Translated by Mark W. Person
“Despite von Humboldt’s tremendous influence on many of the world’s greatest writers and naturalists, including Goethe, Darwin, Emerson, and Thoreau, outside of specialist circles, this new translation has not received the attention it richly deserves.”—Well-read Naturalist 2014 344 p. 6 x 9 3 tables
57 Cloth ISBN: 978-0-226-92318-5 $45.00 Your Price: $36.00

VIEWS OF THE CORDILLERAS AND MONUMENTS OF THE INDIGENOUS PEOPLES OF THE AMERICAS
A Critical Edition
Edited and translated by Vera M. Kutzinski and Ottmar Ette
“This magnificent new edition is the first ever complete English translation of the original French text.”—Nigel Leask, University of Glasgow
Alexander von Humboldt in English
2012 664 p. 6 x 9 30 color plates, 41 halftones, 17 tables

ESSAY ON THE GEOGRAPHY OF PLANTS
With Aimé Bonpland
Edited and with an Introduction by Stephen T. Jackson
Translated by Sylvie Romanowski
“[Humboldt’s] groundbreaking work on plant geography is translated here for the first time in highly readable English, with a perceptive, thought-provoking introduction that lends context and added interest to the general text.”—Choice
2009 296 p. 6 x 9 9 halftones

TRAVELS INTO PRINT
Exploration, Writing, and Publishing with John Murray, 1773–1859
Innes M. Keighren, Charles W. J. Withers, and Bill Bell
“No one did more to transform travel writing into one of the nineteenth century’s most popular genres than the publishing firm of John Murray, and no one has done more to reveal the significance of that project than the authors of this important new book. Making meticulous use of the Murray archives, Keighren, Withers, and Bell have written a rich and penetrating account of how, as they put it, ‘the world was put into words.’”—Dane Kennedy, George Washington University
“The originality of the book’s focus lies in its attention to the whole process of publishing, from the writer’s original notebooks through to the end product and its marketing.”—Peter Hulme, University of Essex
2015 392 p. 6 x 9 15 color plates, 25 halftones, 1 table

SECRET SCIENCE
Spanish Cosmography and the New World
Maria M. Portuondo
“Impeccably researched... Portuondo’s study reveals valuable evidence with which scholars can refashion their images of the Renaissance world and the achievements of Spanish science at the dawn of modernity.”—Nature
2009 352 p. 6 x 9 10 color plates, 18 halftones

MEASURING THE NEW WORLD
Enlightenment Science and South America
Neil Safier
“Safier’s book is an important addition to case studies in the social and technical history of Enlightenment mapping as a process that had less to do with the unproblematic extension of European certainty and more with the contingencies of geography, locally, nationally and as networks of transnational exchange and interaction.”—Imago Mundi
2008 408 p. 6 x 9 20 color plates, 59 halftones
